Huntington Park Responds to Recent Workplace Allegations

Huntington Park, Calif. (Thursday, February 20, 2025) – The City of Huntington Park is aware of recent allegations involving a sitting council member. The complaint includes claims of harassment, discrimination, and a hostile work environment, as well as allegations of gender-based discrimination, intimidation, and retaliation involving both current and former elected officials.

The City clarifies that no Huntington Park City Council member is under investigation regarding these allegations. While the City takes all concerns seriously and is committed to maintaining a professional and respectful workplace, there is no active investigation into any City Council member, as the complaint lacks the necessary legal requirements to proceed.

The City of Huntington Park remains committed to transparency and serving its community. Updates will be provided as appropriate.
